

12 Car Rallies

These events which are ideal for starting out in any kind of rallying, are limited to 12 cars and just about any car can take part. You do not need special equipment to take part, just the relevant map, a map magnifying glass and map light.

For 12-Car rallies, the emphasis is as much on navigation as driving skill, as crews must maintain a 30mph average time schedule through all the control points. The navigator, who uses Ordnance Survey maps to direct the driver around the route, must be very careful with timing - it's just as bad if you check in too early as it is to check in too late at a time control. Beginners receive a map with the route already shown, while Novices have easier navigation to work out than the Experts.

These evening navigational rallies run in Hertfordshire and the entry fee is £10 per car, with event insurance of £15 if your own policy doesn't cover you. Arrive around 7:45pm, first car starts at 8:30pm, with the first car finishing from 10pm.
